

Unity is Strength

One day, Akash and his friends were going home after a ride. On the way, they saw a huge rock in the middle of the road. Akash got out of the car and tried to move the rock. But the rock didn't move. Let's help Akash, one of the friends said. All the others agreed.

They all pushed the rock away from the road. This was possible only because we worked together, Akash said happily.

Mobby and Minnu

Mobby and Minnu were playing with their building blocks. "Mobby, let's break this and make something new," Minnu said. "Wait, Minnu, it will not be easy to make it like this again," Mobby said. But Minnu didn't listen to Mobby. She destroyed the shapes they had built. Minnu tried to make another one but it was not as good as the earlier one. 'It is easy to destroy something, but hard to build it,' Minnu thought sadly.

Eli and The Bees

Eli the bear was walking through the forest. He was feeling very hungry. Suddenly, it started to rain. Eli saw a group of bees trying to save themselves from the rain. Eli put all the bees on a leaf and took them to his cave. But poor Eli was still hungry. When the rain stopped, the bees thanked Eli, and flew back to their home. After sometime, the bees returned with lots of honey for Eli. Helping others is like helping yourself.

The Orchids and The Roses

Once upon a time some Orchids lived inside a house. A few Roses lived outside in the garden. The Orchids always mocked the Roses saying, "We get everything just by standing here. It is so cool and cosy here." Once the people in the house forgot to Water the Orchids. They felt thirsty. It was raining heavily outside, so the Roses got plenty of Water. The wilted Orchids apologised the Roses for their rudeness and they became good friends forever.
